

New Voices in Island Studies

A global network for researchers, academics, activists, practitioners, islanders and island dwellers.

Join us on 28th May to find out more

Co-convenors:

Kirsten Gow, University of Aberdeen / James Hutton Institute

k.gow.21@abdn.ac.uk

Jens Westerskov Andersen, Lund University

jens.westerskov_andersen@soc.lu.se

New Voices in Island Studies

Webinar

May 28th

The New Voices in Island Studies network will host its very first quarterly session this coming 28th of May. The event will be open to anyone eligible for membership (it's free of charge!) – see the NVIS webpage here: New Voices in Island Studies Initiative | SICRI

The webinar will be an opportunity to introduce the network and meet other members, with a group discussion to decide what activity the network should undertake.

Duration in total: 90 min.

Please, be very welcome to join us.

Where: Online via Teams.

Contact k.gow.21@abdn or jens.westerskov_andersen@soc.lu.se to register.

When: NZT 10.30 pm - JT 7.30 pm - CET 12.30 pm – UK 11.30 am – Canada 6.30 am

Please note – we recognize that time zones pose an issue when trying to develop global network and that the timing of the first meeting may not suit everyone. If you are interested in joining the network but are unable to attend the first meeting due to its timing, please do let us know so we can plan future sessions accordingly.

In the concluding group discussion we will reflect on the following:

- what are the common threads within our research?
- what are the specialties / special interests we have?
- what do you want future sessions to look like?
- who should be included in future sessions? (emerging and established)

Send an e-mail to one of the above addresses to sign up for the event. You will be asked to provide information about your areas of interest and any affiliations.